The fancy dress ball at Sheldon's Dancing Academy last night was a most delightful sifair. One scenned suddenly induced into some weird world of fancy, where the plain and well-known real had given way to the charmingty mysterious ideal, the King's Fool, dancing with the Washington Post, came hearer the actual living present, to may make the are actual living present, to may make the actual living present, to may make the actual living present, to may make the mysterious deal, the King's Fool, dancing with the Washington Post, came hearer the actual living present, to may make the mysterious in Miss Josie Pumphrey, in a dress composed entirely of Posts. Lillie Baker was a lovely Snowflake, and one of the best-dressed characters of the lot. Florence Crogan, as Queen of Night, was superb, and Emma Proctor, Queen of the Amazons, earlied a most sweet smiling face above her warlike costume. Amy C. Thompson, as Mazorka, and Lillie Blasland, as Morning, were two more pretty costumes. There were, also, several mule costumes that were particularly noticeable. Eddia Thomton, as Charles H., in a very handsome royal purple. Robert Manger, strutting around as Chief of Podice, George Buchanan, a beautiful page. Frank Raab, a Styrian persaut, and J. S. Kolley, with a sensitive-booking face, suited exactly the character of a Greek boy.

But the finest thing of all was listle Pauline, otherwise Miss Mena Appich; this little midget is only three years old, and it reads like a fairy story, I know, but is the truth, nevertheless, that she danced like a grown up. There were several beautiful finely dances in groups, by Florence Crogan, Lillie Baker, Minnie Bailey, Mamie Smith, and others; and Mamie Pumphrey, a lovely little flower girl, gave Ariel in fine style, seeming to be a living time-beat to the music. The other costumes were Nina Mauger, as Folly: Corinne O'Conner, Sylphida; Mamie Smith, French Peasant; Nellie Friebus, Folly; Servant: Augustus Smith, Grimaldi; George Zeh, Dandy Jim: Will Zeh, Kings Fool, and Wilhur Sharp, Spanish Maider Mouse-in-tue-Connen.

Mr. George P. Peffer, of Wissonsin, read a paper on the horticultural interests of Wisconsin, which mainly treated of the cultivation of cranberries. This casay was briefly discussed, and followed by a paper on the grape culture and wine making of California, which was read by Mr. Sargent, in the absence of H. F. Page, of California, by whom it was written. The remainder of the session was consumed in a discussion of the grape culture. The committee appointed to report upon the reception of American products in France submitted their report, which was adopted by the convention.

The afternoon session of the convention was devoted to the consideration of viticulture. Among the topics considered and essays read were: "Grape Culture and Wine Making;" on "Grafting the Vine; on "The Mineral Nutrition of the Vine for Production of Wine;" "Wine Making and Adulterations."

The Great American Idea.

It is toward that end that we have been progressing." After paying her respects to the Senators who opposed the recent suffinge resolution, the stately and matronly president closed by advising her fomale triends to keep a stout heart and keep up the war until every woman and girl in the land is permitted to enjoy the same rights enjoyed by father and son.

Mrs. Stanton then introduced Mrs. Ellen H. Shelden, the secretary of the association, who submitted her report of the work done in the past year.

Miss Lallie Devereaux Blake male a report on the work done in New York, showing that women are allowed to vote for school trustees in that State. She said that Gov. Cornell is the only governor of the Empire State who had ever dared to mention the word "woman" in his annual message to the legislature.

Miss Anthony came forward and said that a committee would wait upon the audience and ask that they subscribe their names as members of the association.

Why Miss Antheny is a Democrat.

While the committee were performing their duties Miss Anthony made a short

While the committee were performing their duties Miss Anthony made a short address, in which she said she was a Democrats, for the reason that when the Reperiocents, for the reason that when the Re-publicans passed the Fourteenth Amend-ment to the Constitution they were ap-pealed to by the woman suffragists to ex-clude the word "male" from that amend-ment, but they turned a deaf ear to their appeals, and said that they were blocking legislation. Thad, Stevens, the Leader of the Republican Side of the House in 1800, positively refused to even present to that body a petition from the women, while James Brooks, of New York (a staunch Democrat), had the manliness to rise in his seat and present that very petition. "That," said the speaker, "was the first document ever read in either house of Congress on the subject of the rights of women."

Miss Anthony spoke encouragingly of the the work being done throughout the country by her sister suffragists, and regarded the appointment of a committee by the United States Senate to take into consideration all matters on the subject of woman's Leader of the Republican Side

United States Senate to take into considera-tion all matters on the subject of woman's rights as a good omen, and a hopeful sign that the Nation's law makers are at last waking up to a realizing sense of their duty." Miss Anthony then real congratula-tory letters from a number of advocates of the cause.

Mrs. Colby, or Ngbraska, made an ad-dress on the subject of woman's rights in her State, after which the convention took a recess until 220 o'clock.

Aftermoon Session.
